A 6-part breakdown

0101 / 06

| YOU KNEW HIM ON SIGHT.

The dreadlocks, the engine, the relentless running down the right. In the 1990s, when American soccer was still finding itself, Cobi Jones was the most recognisable player it had. Impossible to miss.

0202 / 06

| THE MOST-CAPPED AMERICAN.

He played 164 times for the United States, the all-time record for the men's team. For years, if the USA played, Cobi was on the wing.
Nobody wore the shirt more.

0303 / 06

| THREE WORLD CUPS.

1994 on home soil, then 1998 and 2002. He was there for the tournament that planted soccer in America and the run to the quarter-finals that proved it had grown up. A constant through a changing era.

0404 / 06

| A GALAXY ONE-CLUB MAN.

When MLS launched, he joined the LA Galaxy and stayed for twelve seasons. Over 300 league games, all in one shirt. Loyalty you rarely see.

0505 / 06

| HE BUILT THE PATH.

Before the academies and the big TV deals, players like Cobi made the case that American footballers belonged. A generation grew up wanting to be him. He opened the door.

0606 / 06

| AN ICON, SETTLED.

His number is retired by the Galaxy and he stayed in the game as a coach and ambassador. As the World Cup comes home in 2026, the groundwork is partly his. The face who never really left.
